

Alexandria Gazette

SATURDAY EVENING, JANUARY 14.

At the Montgomery Farmer's Convention, which was held at Sandy Spring, Thursday, Mr. Henry C. Hubbard, in calling the meeting to order, alluded very pleasantly to the nature of the business which had called them together. Investigation, he said, is going on about us, and we are being used to our operation to obtain a general result. Co-operation is as much needed in the course of our progress as any other department, and this convention is one of the first steps towards it. Our profession is not a haphazard one of plodding and digging, not a barren routine, but, above all others, is open to investigation and research. Our convention is for a twofold purpose. First, we may become better acquainted, and, more than all, that we may learn something of "the man that lives to make his name, but not his life." We may learn something of his noble profession, and what he has to say. Among other advantages in knowledge mentioned was that of the itchy vision of sheep, first tried in France with good results, and which is now attracting much attention.
